

How To Eliminate Fruit Flies

The primary control for fruit flies is sanitation. Prior to setting any traps for existing flies, the best way to avoid problems with them is to eliminate sources of attraction.

Keep fruit stored in the refrigerator, rinse and drain bottles and cans that are to be recycled, and dispose of any garbage indoors.

A single rotting potato, onion, or fruit that has been forgotten can breed thousands of fruit flies.

Once you have rid your home of any possible fruit fly attractants use a trap to capture and kill fruit flies. It is recommended to use a non-toxic food-based liquid that lures the flies inside the trap. Once inside, they cannot escape to breed or feed.
